Downright Good Reading COME facts are too large for easy comprehension. You've a clear idea, maybe, of how an audience of 5,000 people would look. But have you any notion of what a crowd of 5,000,000 people would be like?

The International Library of Famous Literature is so vast a collection that it's almost impossible to give a clear idea of it as a whole.

Even a single volume is better understood by considering some of the most notable portions only. For example:

In the first volume are some of the old Indian or Vedic hymns, written perhaps three or four thousand years ago—one to the Rain God, another to the Fire God, another to the Sun, one to Dawn, another upon the Mystery of Creation; an account of Prince Siddartha's marriage, as told in Sir Edwin Arnold's beautiful poem, "The Light of Asia." Then a novelette of a pretty princess, taken from the old, old Mahabharata, and right after it is the oldest novel in the world, tale of the two brothers, written for one of the oldest Pharaohs, as crude and quaint as a child's first attempt to draw; a dialogue on the conduct of life, likewise from the Indian, written probably centuries before the Bible was written; and then comes Matthew Arnold's thrilling poem of "Sohrab and Rostum," the Persian story of the father and the son who fought against each other on the field and became reconciled as Sohrab lay dying; translations of some of the interesting parts of Homer, the Contention of Achilles and Agamemnon; the poet Landor's imaginary dialogue between Achilles and Helena: Dido in Love, from Virgil; a passage from Keats's Greek poem of "Hyperion;" Hawthorne's story of Jason's Search for the Golden Fleece; Pericles's immortal speech upon the greatness of Athens, and Ruskin's version of Greek Myths, and Swinburne's translations of the passionate love lyrics of Sappho, and Macaulay's tale of Horatius at the Bridge, and the story of the outraged Lucretia, by Livy, and so on. All this in a single volume!

$1.55 a volume is the Wanamaker Club price. An equal amount of downright good reading couldn't be bought in any other way for double the price.

The Zenith of Modern Storekeeping

IT is found in the cabinets of all the highly civilized nations. Emperors, Kings, Presidents and Prime Ministers are occupied with the same questions as the great contemporary retailers. Commerce controls imperial policies. The creation of new markets in which to sell things inspires England, Germany and France, in Africa. Armies, navies and diplomats are in the service of manufacturers just as the Bon Marche and the Louvre, Wanamaker's and others. When the large American retailers comprehend the dignity and reach of their position, retailing will be respected for what it really isthe pinnacle of the World's Commerce.

Gastronomy and Thanksgiving

The dinner table is the pivot of the holiday next Thursday. The dining room and the kitchen supply topics for to-day's store news. Every housekeeper may read with profit all that follows. Economy is the twin of elegance in our Thanksgiving anthology.

Dining-Room Furniture there be a large gathering? Is the present dining table large enough, or good enough? Is there need of a sideboard or a serving - table or more chairs? Wouldn't a china cabinet add much to the room's appearance? You know the sort of furniture we sell and some prices may interest you. Read these:

Cut Glass light with the elegance and beauty of diamonds. Each piece shown on our counters to-day is a trophy of economy. Our command in selling gives command in buying, and some of the greatest producers find advantage in using this outlet without profit. That's an economic question. The practical illustration s in our store. A hint of it follows: Prices here quoted are 1/4 to 1/4 less than their actual value:

Bowls, $4, $5, $6, up to $27.50. Carafes, $3.50, $4.50, $5. Water Pitchers, $6.50, $7, $8. Olive Dishes, $2, $2.25, $3. Celery Trays, $4, $6, $6.50. Ice Tube, $6, $7.50, up to $25. Cottons that look High Grade like silk. But they Velveteens are not like the old iland china ware. All New York style velveteens. Light, firm, soft, flexible, perfect, in an array of colors that will match every fraction of hue or shade that can possibly be required.

Great retailers are good physicians to importers or manufacturers with congested stocks. The service is paid for by cash clipped from real values. So now 44 colorings in beautiful velvets at

55c. a Yard and they would be 85c. but for the fact that the importer looked at his market through a magnifying glass.

Taffeta A short tale with a sharp point. Only 5,400 Silks yards of an excellent grade of Taffeta Silk; 21 colors in various shades. Just right for waists and skirts. Their value 75c., but the price is 60c.

Do you see the point?
